NEWS FLASH!!!

CC&R CHANGE
THE TIMBERS DIVISION
38 LOTS AVAILABLE
.66 ACRES - 2.11 ACRES

We are happy to announce that we have just completed a change in the CC&R's for the Timbers Division of Roosevelt Lake Ranch at Lincoln. The new guidelines allow for the "Pole Type" construction of Shops and Garages. Power, water and telephone are stubbed into the lot line for each homesite and the Lincoln Mill Boat Launch is just moments away. Pricing for the Timbers runs from $39,900 - $61,900 and Owner Financing is available. (These CC&R changes only effect the Timbers Division of Roosevelt Lake Ranch at Lincoln.)

December 7, 1941 "A day that will live in infamy"

Those words were spoken by President Franklin D Roosevelt the day after Japan attacked Pearl Harbor and we declared war. Most of us over the age of 80 were children then, but everyone - men, women, and children, contributed to the war effort. Blackouts, rationing, shortages, sorrow, fear, saving grease, radio, and the Andrew Sisters were everyday occurrences, as were prayers for our loved ones fighting overseas. The Museum has a zinc penny that was minted in 1943 to save copper for the war effort.

Our memories can be woven together to tell the story of when we as Americans stood together to fight for our country and the world. Written stories, thoughts, impressions or snippets can be brought to the Museum, mailed, or phoned in. We also like to talk, so stop by and we'll swap stories. The Museum is open Tuesday through Saturday, 10 am to 4 pm.

"There is divine beauty in learning, just as there is human beauty in tolerance. To learn means to accept the postulate that life did not begin at my birth. Others have been here before me, and I walk in their footsteps. The books I have read were composed by generations of father and sons, mothers and daughters, teachers and disciples. I am the sum total of their experiences, their quests, and so are you."
~Holocaust Survivor Elie Wiesel, Nobel Laureate

ZUCCHINI: The large green monster veggie of the season, often found at post offices, and other local gathering places, is a type of summer squash. Along with certain other squashes and pumpkins, the zucchini belongs to the species Cucurbita pepo. It can be dark or light green. A related hybrid, the golden zucchini, is a deep yellow or orange color.

In a culinary context, the zucchini is treated as a vegetable; it is usually cooked and presented as a savory dish or accompaniment. Botanically, zucchinis are fruits, a type of botanical berry called a "pepo", being the swollen ovary of the zucchini flower.

The zucchini, like all squash, originates in the Americas, specifically Mesoamerica. However, the varieties of squash typically called "zucchini" were developed in northern Italy in the second half of the 19th century after being brought to Europe by European explorers, many generations after the introduction of cucurbits from the Americas in the early 16th century. The first records of zucchini in the United States date to the early 1920s.

When used for food, zucchini are usually picked when under 8 inches in length, when the seeds are still soft and immature. Mature zucchini can be a meter long or more. The larger ones are often fibrous. A zucchini with the flowers attached is a sign of a truly fresh and immature fruit, and it is especially sought after for its sweeter flavor. Zucchini has a delicate flavor and requires little more than quick cooking with butter or olive oil, with or without fresh herbs. The skin is left in place. Quick cooking of barely wet zucchini in oil or butter allows the fruit to partially boil and steam, with the juices concentrated in the final moments of frying when the water has gone, prior to serving. Zucchini can also be eaten raw, sliced or shredded, in a cold salad, as well as lightly cooked in hot salads, as in Thai or Vietnamese recipes. Mature (larger sized) zucchini are well suited for cooking in breads. Zucchinis can be cut with a spiralizer to make zucchini noodles that act as a spaghetti substitute for low-carbohydrate recipes.

In Egypt, zucchini may be cooked with tomato sauce, garlic, and onions. In France, zucchini is a key ingredient in ratatouille, a stew of summer fruits and vegetables prepared in olive oil and cooked for an extended time over low heat. In Mexico, the flower (known as flor de calabaza) is often cooked in soups or used as a filling for quesadillas. In Russia, Ukraine and other CIS countries, zucchini usually is coated in flour or semolina and then fried or baked in vegetable oil, served with a sour cream.

Try zucchini bread or muffins for an extra helping of veggies.

HARVEST SEASON IS UPON US. Be aware of farm equipment when traveling.
Rural drivers can expect to share the road with large farm implements. Tractors and combines are large and heavy, making it difficult for operators to accelerate, slow down and stop. Farm vehicles make wide turns and the large-scale equipment often crosses the center line, creating large blind spots and making it hard for operators to see approaching vehicles. To ensure safety, motorists should always slow down and use caution when approaching farm equipment. All drivers need to move cautiously across roadways, checking and double checking blind spots. It's important for drivers and farm equipment operators to remain alert at all times and be considerate of each other. Here are some good driving tips to keep in mind during harvest season.

TIPS FOR RURAL DRIVERS

• Always be on the lookout for farm machinery. Remember it can unexpectedly turn onto public roads from a field or driveway.
• Farm machinery typically travels at 25 mph or less, so be prepared to slow down.
• Keep a safe distance. This gives better visibility to both drivers and equipment operators.
• Allow adequate time and distance for farm equipment to make wide turns.
• Just because you see the equipment does not mean the equipment operator sees you.

TIPS FOR PASSING FARM MACHINERY

• Be sure the machinery is not turning left. Look for left turn lights or hand signals. If the machinery slows down and pulls toward the right side of the road, the operator may be preparing to make a wide left turn. Likewise, sometimes to make a wide right turn, the operator must fade to the left.
• Determine whether the road is wide enough for both your vehicle and the farm equipment.
• Check for roadside obstacles such as mailboxes, bridges or road signs that may cause the machinery to move to the center of the road.
• Be sure there is adequate distance for you to safely pass and be on the look out for oncoming traffic.
