Good project managers are people with an excellent entrepreneurial mindset. This allows them to think about a project beyond the basic skill set needed to manage it., it is the project manager's job to direct teams and team members to the finish line. At the end of the day, the project's success or failure rests solely on the project manager's shoulders, and he or she is the one responsible for the end result.

Project managers keep knowledge and information flowing seamlessly. They need both technical know-how and first-hand knowledge of the tasks they assign to others to keep the project moving forward. Good project managers use their technical understanding to win team members' respect. (MARTHA) BERNICE STORMO

December 26, 1923 - July 30, 2021

Bernice Stormo was born at home to John and Dessie (Rose) Pierce in Davenport, Washington on a snowy winter evening the day after Christmas, 1923. She was the second of five children (all daughters) born to John and Dessie. She grew up helping with farm chores and the garden, where she developed a life long love of gardening. She was a good student who loved math; she graduated as Salutatorian of the DHS class of 1941. While in high school Bernice met her future husband, Howard Stormo. They both loved to dance and got acquainted at local grange dances. After graduation she and Howard didn't see much of each other for a couple of years - he joined the Coast Guard and she went off to Kinman Business University in Spokane. After graduation from Kinman, Bernice worked as a bookkeeper at a grocery store on the south hill, then moved on to a civil service job at Fairchild. She was always proud of the 6-day week and overtime hours spent on that job, working as part of the war effort. When Howard came home on leave in "that cute sailor uniform" she was "smitten for good!" They married on December 26, 1944 and moved to Everett, WA, where Howard was stationed. When the war ended they returned to the Stormo family home on Indian Creek, north of Davenport, and settled in to farm and raise a family. Over the years as a farm wife Bernice milked cows and helped with other farm work, raised chickens, bottle-fed calves, and worked at her favorite job: being a mom to her son and daughter. She always grew a big vegetable garden and lots of flowers because she "just love[d] to watch things grow." An excellent seamstress, she sewed clothes for the family and even for the Barbie dolls. She also liked to knit and crochet and was an avid reader who never missed a weekly trip to town to go to the library. When the family moved closer to town in the early 70s she took a job at Edna's Drive-In (where she especially enjoyed rolling dice for coffee with her morning customers), worked in the hospital kitchen, and then was head cook for the Davenport School. After retirement, she and Howard kept busy, mostly working together at Lightning Nuggets, the fairgrounds and the car wash, and they always found time for fishing and grandkids. In recent days Bernice often declared that she'd had a good life, and would tell anyone who'd listen how proud she was of her children and their accomplishments. She will be remembered as a loving mother, grandmother and sister, someone who loved to read and to learn, who liked to have fun and wasn't afraid to get into a little mischief, and had the enviable capacity to just enjoy life as it came.

Bernice was preceded in death by her husband Howard in 2008, sisters Viola (Coley) in 2012 and Margery (Coleman) in 2013. She is survived by son Mike (Jackie) Stormo; daughter Chris (Dave) Hoppes; grandson Max (Jen) Stormo; granddaughters Jaclyn Darrouzet-Nardi, Diana Hoppes, and Amber Stormo; great-grandchildren Christian Stormo, Cara Darrouzet-Nardi, Lionel Darrouzet-Nardi, Jacob Mattox and Libby Mattox; and sisters Peggy (Dillon) and Jackie (Sims). Per Bernice's request there will be a private graveside memorial. For those who wish to do so, Bernice would be very honored by memorial contributions to the Lincoln Hospital Foundation or the Davenport Library.
