HOW WILL THE FIBER CONNECT TO A HOME OR BUSINESS?

Multiport Service Terminals (MST) are installed on poles or strand lines during network construction. A property owner's ISP will connect a drop cable from an MST to a small box that attaches to a structure's exterior. Each drop cable carries one optical fiber to an interface device within the box. The ISP will bring the connection into the structure.

TWO FOR ONE SENIORS AT THE RAILROAD MUSEUM
 The Inland Northwest Rail Museum will recognize seniors this weekend with a special celebration. Senior Weekend (55+) takes place November 10-11-12 and offers s special admission prices of $5 per person for the 55+ crowd. Most seniors remember the chug-chug of steam engines, the clang of the bell and loud whistle as the locomotive approached a crossing. When they were young many had the opportunity to ride on a passenger train. By touring the museum you can relive that experience (or have one of your own) as you walk through the restored train cars, view exhibits, and ride the museum's 2-foot train. Railroads were pioneers in helping to develop the Inland Northwest with Spokane being the hub of five railroads in the day. Don't miss the opportunity to step back in time at 27300 Sprinkle Rd N, Reardan, from 10 am-5 pm. Bring the grandkids too!

DR. PAUL GROVE: A REVIEW by Jeri' Kanally

As a relatively new resident of Harrington WA (March 2022), I'm so delighted and grateful for the incredibly talented performers offered by the beautiful and nostalgic Harrington Opera House. Dr. Paul Grove's solo guitar performance of music from around the world, was quite exceptional! He's been a featured soloist with the NW region's most prominent symphonies and ensembles. He has toured throughout the US, as well as in Russia, Brazil, India, and Canada. Having such a world renowned, talented performer, come to our little town and perform in our opera house, was so special for us. He came to Harrington knowing his audience would be small. It seems to me like a sort of music mission trip, away from the big city to our quaint little farm town. It must be for the pure pleasure of sharing his musical gifts with us. We are honored and so very grateful. When I was thanking Dr. Grove after the show, I told him I was thankful enough for a hundred more people! My hope is that our Opera House audience will grow and support more amazing talent.

During Dr. Grove's performance, he enlightened and entertained us by sharing historical information on his selections from around the world and why he chose them. Through his stories, we could see and sense his heartfelt love for each piece of music. But then, when he played his guitar, the music was so thought provoking, emotive and pictorial. We could envision all the different cultures, their people in love, in sadness, in hope, in fear, and in joy. What a delight it was to hear him play a piece called, "Green Fields And Meadows," composed by George Frederick McKay, Harrington WA (1899-1970). The lighthearted and romantic flow in Mr. McKay's music made it so easy to envision the same lush green farm lands and beautiful meadows surrounding Harrington. How special!

Dr. Grove told us a tragic and triumphant story about an amazing connection he has with an Afghan composer and children's music teacher, Ustad Sarmast. The composer feared for his family's life when escaping the Afghanistan war, and continued to risk his life because he would not stop composing, playing and teaching music. When Dr. Grove played the Afghan composer's piece titled, "Farwardin," it made my heart and eyes well up. Even though the tune was light and beautiful, it had an undertone, a low note of sadness. I was suddenly surprised when I briefly envisioned a terrified Afghanistan woman running away, looking back in fear. Wow. Is it possible that my vision was a sight the composer had seen? Can music do that...travel all the way from an Afghan composer's life to my life in this little town? Perhaps. Music is an incredibly far reaching gift! The world hears laughing and crying in the same language. Music must have the power and potential for a vastly bigger conversation, a way of communicating an understanding and connecting us all in very unique ways. When Dr. Grove was all finished playing, he stood smiling and thanked us. But then, in an almost sad and serious tone, he said, "The world needs more music." He paused, glanced down and then looked around at his audience and said, "Especially now." We all understood. Thank you for uniting our world with your amazing performance!

DAVENPORT FFA BRINGS BACK SILVER FROM NATIONALS

At a bright and early 4:00 a.m. on Friday, October 27th the Davenport FFA began a journey that started 84 years earlier in 1939... a trip to compete for the first time ever at the National FFA Convention in Indianapolis, Indiana. Our Nursery Landscape team finished as State Champions back in May and finally got to represent Washington in the national contest. We were one of 43 states to compete and finished with a Silver Emblem placing, which put us into the top third of teams competing, and is very commendable in such a challenging contest. The students worked extremely hard to make this trip a possibility and were rewarded with some amazing experiences.

The first leg of our trip took us to Nashville, Tennessee where the students got to see Carrie Underwood perform at the world famous Grand Ole Opry; visited the home, tomb and plantation of our nation's 7th President, Andrew Jackson; the tomb of our 11th President James K. Polk; and spent some time along the country music mecca of Broadway Avenue in downtown. While in Tennessee we also took the opportunity to visit a Civil War battlefield in the town of Franklin. At the Carnton home in Franklin, we were treated to an impromptu lesson from a local historian, which was an absolute treat. We were able to learn first hand about the Civil War, and even explored a Confederate cemetery, certainly something we would never be able to do in the Northwest.

The next leg of our journey led us to the Louisville Slugger Museum and Factory in Louisville, Kentucky. At the museum, students were able to see some amazing exhibits of Major League Baseball history including being able to hold game used bats owned by some of baseball's greatest players: Babe Ruth, Hank Aaron, Ken Griffey Jr., Daryl Strawberry, Willie Mays, Derek Jeter and more. During the factory tour they learned about everything from the agricultural products used to the process of bat making: every step was covered from tree in the forest to bat in the hand. The tour included a lesson on the different wood densities and how they perform as baseball bats. Each student was given a mini bat souvenir as we left. From Louisville we headed to Indianapolis for the convention.

The day before the convention started, we studied at a local nursery before heading to our last sight seeing tour at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, or the Brickyard for those racing enthusiasts. During the tour, students got to ride a lap around the course and stopped to kiss the bricks at the finish line. Unfortunately, there were no bottles of milk available to chug, but an incredible experience nonetheless. Our last historical stop was to visit the home and grave of the 23rd President of the United States, Benjamin Harrison. We learned that President Harrison was actually historically significant to Washingtonians as he was the President who admitted Washington State into the Union in 1889.

That is all before the convention started. This year the National FFA announced that nearly 70,000 members are in Indianapolis for this year's convention. To give a sense of what that is like, if you've ever participated in Bloomsday, imagine that, double it, and everyone is wearing FFA blue courdoroy jackets. It was an absolute sea of FFA members clogging the roads between the football stadium and convention center in Indianapolis. During the National FFA Convention, students competed on day one and spent the rest of their time attending workshops, listening to guest speakers, completing convention tasks, meeting members from all over the U.S. and experiencing the largest college fair and ag expo in the country. This trip was an eye opening experience for everyone and could not have happened without the support of parents, teachers and the Davenport community. Thank you to everyone for all of your support!

Congratulations, Lincoln County!

The recipe for providing our customers with a great internet experience starts with quality people. Then we blend world-class routing and switching equipment along with continuous training to bring our customers the best experience. Our focus is to nurture technical teams that learn together and create support teams that never lose sight of the customer and their needs.

We are proud to retain our customers at a rate more than three times the industry average.

We insist on providing you with a top-of-the-line wifi6, routing and firewall device. You control your internal network from an app on your smartphone. If you have a problem, our help desk team connects with this device so together, we can see where any problems might occur. By extending our network into your home, we ensure rock solid internet, all the time.

Customers matter. Start with dedicated people who are passionate about their craft. At Intermax we have hired almost a third of our staff as they graduate from the IT program at North Idaho College. They can build a highly rewarding career here and the number of "lifers" we have on staff shows the success of treating everyone just as you would like to be treated. Of course, that extends to our customers. From our help desk to our installers, our network engineering and fiber teams, everyone here is dedicated to your success. We strive to provide you with the help you need to get connected, start streaming TV and video, connect to the office, and connect to the world!

Connections matter. We connect to thousands of providers at a "meet me" room in Seattle. When you put a packet on our network, it travels from your network to ours and from ours directly to a switch in Seattle that also holds sites from all the top content delivery networks, big vendors like Google, Microsoft, AWS, Netflix, Disney. In fact, over two thirds of our traffic never actually travel the "wild" internet, instead, it goes directly to where you sent it. In our game, milliseconds matter.

You must have a team that is nuts for all-nighters. The fact is, you cannot upgrade and maintain the network when people are relying on it. You must have talented network engineers that want to work all night and then hang in there to make sure everything works when people start using it in the morning.

Design matters. Network design aimed at resiliency, capacity and speed creates the backbone of your internet experience. Our network runs in circles. Circles of connection that protect you from single points of failure, circles of support to provide you with a great experience.

Help Desk matters. When you are having an issue, nothing beats a conversation with a helpful, knowledgeable person who can solve the problem. Over 85% of incoming issues get resolved on the phone by our Coeur d'Alene help desk team. Our team is so good other companies pay us to support their networks. These people are the foundation of the great relationships we hope to build with you.

Sincerely,

 Pat Whalen
 VP and Chief Technical Officer
